2. AUDEZE PENROSE ★★ ★

The best premium PC gaming headset

"Those of you shopping for the very best of the best in terms of PC gaming headsets, and with a suitable budget available to spend, should take a look at the Audeze Penrose. There's some very smart, very high quality audio technology packed in here, and that really comes across in terms of what you can hear when you're in the middle of your games (or indeed listening to music or watching movies)."

"This is a headset that's really well put together, with no hint of cheapness or flimsiness anywhere – it feels like a piece of hardware that's going to last a long time. While it's robust, the Audeze Penrose headset is also comfortable to wear, and you'll have no problems wearing this for an extended period of time while you're gaming. The on-board controls are all easily accessible and intuitive to use, too."

"It's the audio quality that really sets the Audeze Penrose headset apart though, and even though there's no surround sound feature, the special planar magnetic drivers that Audeze has developed do a wonderful job. You can use the headset connected to your computer or wirelessly, and if you choose the latter you get about 15 hours of battery life before you'll have to recharge the device again."
